Soccer Games: Football and Its History

People in different parts of the world enjoy different types of games. Football is one of the games that have broken such regional barriers and it has fans in all places. In fact, games football have made a complete turn-around, from a game that used to kills its players while people hardly watched it to a game that spectators can kill themselves to watch!

People spend a lot of money in different games. Football is one of the games where millions are transacted in form of merchandise, tickets, and player expenses among others. There are different leagues in different parts of the world that have large followings and the fans are not restricted to the regions where the leagues are played.

Many people enjoy games football this way in spite of the fact that they do not know its history. Here is a brief history that will help you to get even more enjoyment from the games. Football has a long history and it is almost impossible to trace who started it. However, the first football game competition to be played in an American college was held on November 6, 1869. The competition was between Princeton and Rutgers universities.
